The convention was called to order by the President of the Association, A. S. Rosenroll, M.P., W. J. McNamara acting as secretary. FOUND HANGING FROM BEAM

Determined Case of Suicide Near Prince Albert

Prince Albert, Mar. 22.—About daylight this morning, Edward Laford was found hanging to the beam of a log shanty on the north side of the river, opposite the city. The Mounted Police were at once notified, and when they reached the spot the body was still warm, although life was extinct. All indications point to a determined case of suicide. The scene of the crime was the shanty in which the body of the Linklater woman supposed to have been killed the night previous, lay awaiting the coronor's inquest. The projecting beam from which the body hung was barely seven feet above the ground and the deed was committed by means of a small clothes line ingeniously fastened into a noose. Deceased stood on an ordinary wooden platform and when ready kicked it away, his toes just clearing the ground when found. It is supposed that Laford was implicated in the death of Mrs. Linklater and took this means of settling the matter.

ADDRESS ADOPTED AFTER A CONTINUED DEBATE

Yesterday Occupied in Consideration of the Amendment Introduced by the Opposition--
Notice of New Bills to be Introduced

Yesterday's proceedings brought out the most interesting and eloquent speeches that have yet been delivered in the Alberta legislature. John T. Moore, the member for Red Deer, took the honors for the oratory in a masterly address which he delivered, touching every point referred to by the opposition in their amendments to the address in reply, and delivered a finished and eloquent address which more than proves that the Alberta House has orators among its members who will rank with the best in the west. Mr. Moore spoke for a full hour, and the careful attention of the large assemblage which thronged the galleries, and the frequent applause were good and sufficient evidence that his discourse was fully appreciated.

Mr. Moore was followed by W. F. Puffer of Lacombe, who spoke to the amendment to defend himself against the attacks of the Opposition for what they considered undue influence of the public works department in the elections.

Mr. McCauley, of Victoria, spoke to the amendment and proved that he was a man of large ideas and that he had very advanced views as to how the monopolies that are shackling the country should be treated. Mr. McCauley believed that the marketing of beef and similar products should be handled by the Government in very much the same manner that the dairy industry is now handled, and he promised at a later date in the session to bring the matter up in a shape that the members could act on. He was especially severe on the beef monopoly, which he said, was and seconded by the Attorney-General that a committee of six be appointed to welcome Prince Arthur of Connaught, on the occasion of his visit to the city.

Mr. Hebert, of Rosebud, when the debate on the speech from the throne was reached asked the privilege of addressing the House in defense of his position on the amendment, which he said had been misunderstood, or misinterpreted by the members of the government. In opening his remarks he referred to the remarks of the member for Strathcona on his speech in amendment and was about to lead off into a line of argument which the speaker ruled out of order, and the member for Rosebud was compelled to sit down.

John T. Moore in taking up the amendment to the speech from the throne, said that he arose with a feeling of gratitude that he was privileged by a kind fate to be present as a member of the first legislature of the Province of Alberta, and he considered the Liberal party, to which he was proud to belong was to be highly congratulated on having achieved such a triumph of citizenship as the inception of the Province of Alberta and her sister province of Saskatchewan under the wise and beneficent legislation by which they were created. It had been his proud privilege to be present in the galleries in the House of Commons at Ottawa when the great central figure of the Liberal party, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, had made his magnificent speech on the autonomy bill and it had been impressed on him that here was the man who through all the changing scenes since 1867 had been the high priest of toleration and freedom in Canada. To his wise counsel a great part of the grandeur of the new province must be attributed. It was no small matter to place the people's favor that had been placed on the members when they were selected to carry to completion the work thus conceived. It was a work that should be touched only with the greatest reverence.

We have, he said, more than an ordinary commonplace part in the building of an empire and it is expected of us that we will in carrying out our part of the constitution be careful not to put any dynamite into the foundation.

"We are fortunate that the sceptre of power has been placed in the hands of the Liberal party. I am a Liberal of the old school; or perhaps I might better say a reformer, or a radical, and while I am satisfied with the train of events which has placed the Liberal party in control of affairs in Canada, I believe in placing principle before power. In undertaking the rebuilding of the great state in Alberta we start with a clean sheet. We have nothing to atone; nothing to explain; the field is clear, the future is our own."

The Liberal party, he said, is the party for the west. It is the people's party. It is the party which fought the fight of the west, and of the people of the west in the east at a time when the west needed a champion. It aims at honest government; it aims at civil, social and commercial liberty. There is no change in the grand old principle and there is no alteration in the grand old facts. The Liberal party stands today as it has always stood, for government of the people, by the people, for the people.

cealing the farmers large amounts annually.

Mr. McKenzie, of Macleod, delivered a brief address, in which he dealt almost exclusively with the railway and land exemptions of the C. P. R., and he gave it as his opinion that the corporation could be taxed in spite of any exemptions which had been granted at Ottawa back in the days of '81.

John R. Boyle spoke of the result and the lessons of the late elections and J. W. Woolf, of Cardston, closed the debate on the speech, making a very brief, but highly common-sense address, in which he compared the schools and the school system of the United States, under which he had received education, with the national school system of Alberta, as provided by the Alberta Act.

The amendment was put and defeated on the straight party vote and the motion was then put and carried on the same vote.

In the regular order of business, Mr. Rosenroll, of Wetaskiwin, presented a petition from the Edelweiss Club praying for incorporation, and another from the city of Wetaskiwin praying for incorporation as a city.

Premier Rutherford, as minister of Education, introduced a bill to provide for the establishment and incorporation of the University of Alberta.

W. H. Cushing introduced a bill to respecting public works, which is in the nature of a technical amendment to the Ordinances.

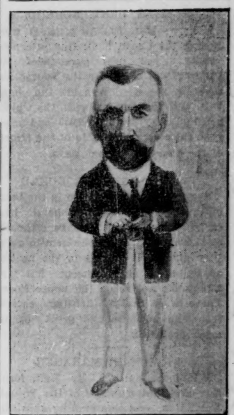

Attorney-General Cross introduced a bill respecting the transfer of lands in the province and another regarding the habeas corpus.

A motion was made by Premier Rutherford and seconded by Attorney-General Cross providing that a select committee of six be appointed to act with the speaker as custodians of the parliamentary library.

It was also moved by the Premier without a doubt, but now, forsooth, the father of the infamy was crying to spare the child.

On the school question, now that the matter had been brought up a declaration should go forth clear and distinct and for all time on this question. "A great number of assertions had been made in this connection by the Conser-

One party had been singled out for special favors; the superstructure of the country will be wrecked; double taxation, and so forth, and so forth, and so forth. The statement had been made that we had no national schools. I believe that we have nothing but national

RENEWED REPORTS OF RAILWAY ACTIVITIES

Grand Trunk Pacific Wants Entry to Regina--Hill's Plans for Canadian Lines

St. Paul, Mar. 22.—Not until now has the full significance of James J. Hill's railway building operations in Western Canada dawned upon the close observers in the railway world. The president of the Great Northern is credited with contemplating building no less than 3000 miles of road in that part of the Dominion. He is likely to equal in Canada, if he does not surpass, his features of the construction on the American side of the line. To begin with, aside from the lines from St. John, N.D., to Brandon, and from some point in North Dakota to Portage La Prairie, Hill will build a line from Havre, Mont., on the Great Northern's main line through Medicine Hat, and from there to Edmonton. This line will be 440 miles in length. One branch of it will go to Calgary. This line will be intersected by an east and west road which will make connections with Hill's line to Fernie, B.C., and on the east will run to Regina, 500 miles, where it will secure Winnipeg connections.

Regina, March 22.—The Grand Trunk Pacific is reported to be negotiating with the city for a block to be used as a site for the Company's station at Regina, for a street railway franchise and for the construction by the city of subways under the Canadian Pacific tracks. The company is making various other demands before it will consent to come into the city and make Regina a divisional point. It is said the company will be prepared to guarantee construction of the Winnipeg, Regina Air Line. A proposal somewhat similar in character was made to Brandon, but was refused.

Regina city council has voted $1,500 as a preliminary fund for the city banquet to the leaders of the first Saskatchewan legislature. It will be held the end of the first week in April.

EDMONTON WON STEPHEN CUP

Defeated Strathcona Team Last Night by Score 6 to 5

The Edmonton Thistles have once more and for the last time this season, come home from the enemy's country crowned with victory, and bearing the trophies of the fight. In the sudden death games on the other side of the river last night, they defeated the Strathconas by six scores to five.

The only mishap of the evening, and for that matter, of the whole season, happened during the second half when McArthur, one of Strathcona's most reliable men, got jammed into a corner some way and broke his collar bone. It was an unfortunate happening, and the Thistles dropped Eddie Sibbald to even up.

TRAINLOAD OF SETTLERS
Winnipeg, Mar. 22.—The Canadian Northern express for Edmonton, which left here today, comprised twelve cars, including a first class sleeper, diner, two first class and three second class day coaches, three baggage and express cars. There were 650 people on board, the majority of them being homesteaders, and landseekers, destined for points on the main line.

THE LEGISLATURE

The member for Rosedale, in the debate on Thursday on the address, in reply to the speech from the throne developed the somewhat novel doctrine that the Province should avoid legislation on matters affecting coal mining within the Province of Alberta. The ground taken was that the proposed legislation involved expenditure, and that as the Province did not receive the royalties from the coal, no expense in this connection should be undertaken. Following the criticism that the legislative council of the speech from the throne was unparliamentary in the assumption of what one portion of the proposed legislation would or would not involve, expenditure was not broad. But the breadth of the assumption is evidenced by the consequences involved in the adoption of the proposed principle. Coal mining is an industry already carried on to a considerable extent in this Province, and crystals of very large development in the future and whether the permission to conduct coal mining enterprises be obtained from the Federal or the Provincial Government, the direct and material benefits of such enterprises go to the people of the Province in the form of increased pay rolls, industrial development, larger home markets, and larger trade returns with the neighboring Provinces which have no coal resources. While therefore it returns for the administration of the coal lands the Federal Government receives the royalties collected from the miners, the Provincial treasury is calculated with recognition of this fact and the commercial benefits of the mining operations go directly to the enrichment of the Province and are incalculably more valuable than the royalties collected on the output of the mines. Such being the case it is of primary importance to the Province that the coal mining industry be conducted in a manner calculated to secure the fullest and most rapid development and to produce the largest commercial benefits, and is a matter of good business judgment to secure such conduct by legislative means. It is somewhat surprising therefore, to hear a member of the Opposition, who is a member of the Opposition in the House of Commons, who in the good judgment of the Provincial Government, was in his place to support the conduct of this industry should be left exclusively in the hands of that Government and not less worthy of note that in the course of a speech in which he set forth his undying adherence to the principle of Provincial control of Provincial affairs that same member strikes a blow at the proposal to bring under Provincial control one of the greatest factors in our industrial development.

Mr. Bennett asked his colleagues to that of his factor that the Opposition do not want the opportunity of a vote on the question of the Provincial Government, was in his place to support the conduct of this industry should be left exclusively in the hands of that Government and not less worthy of note that in the course of a speech in which he set forth his undying adherence to the principle of Provincial control of Provincial affairs that same member strikes a blow at the proposal to bring under Provincial control one of the greatest factors in our industrial development.

Mr. Bennett asked his colleagues to that of his factor that the Opposition do not want the opportunity of a vote on the question of the Provincial Government, was in his place to support the conduct of this industry should be left exclusively in the hands of that Government and not less worthy of note that in the course of a speech in which he set forth his undying adherence to the principle of Provincial control of Provincial affairs that same member strikes a blow at the proposal to bring under Provincial control one of the greatest factors in our industrial development.

judgment on the question without violating their obligations in the Government which should be in power. What ever credit pertains therefore to the resolution of the judgment of the Provincial convention of both political parties and to the attempt to institute in Alberta the principle of Government by locality instead of Government by policy belongs to the members from High River and Rosedale.

Not more fortunate was the reference of Mr. Hill to the Hudson Bay Railway question in which he revealed a noticeable misunderstanding or a not less noticeable misrepresentation of the Liberal policy toward this project and pledged himself to the policy of fastening on the four western Provinces the entire burden of the enterprise. The Liberals of Alberta hold that the construction of such railway would be an enterprise for the general benefit of Canada, and, as such, entitled to consideration under Federal auspices, while obtaining it the business of the four provinces more directly concerned to take the initiative in investigating the feasibility of such enterprise. That such investigation was being undertaken by the Government was the welcome announcement of the Premier.

Not the least interesting portion of the speech of the member for Rosedale was that in which he opposed the taxation of the Rosedale and rolling stock of railway enterprises, on the ground that the exemption granted by his party to the C.P.R. would constitute an advantage which would deter the construction of competing railways. The fact that one such competing road has been already constructed and that another is now under actual construction did not appear of sufficient consequence to discount the abstract contention that such lines would not be built under the handicap of provincial taxation. Neither did the other commodity admitted fact that the traffic rates of the C.P.R. are sufficiently high to enable a competitor to pay a reasonable tax and still earn dividends over by a substantial reduction of such rates.

CONSERVATIVES AND RAILWAYS

In the intervals of representing themselves as the friends of Provincial construction of the Hudson Bay Railway the Alberta Opposition may derive some entertainment from a perusal of the railway activities of their friends in New Brunswick. New Brunswick, it appears owns a railway, and an offer has been received from a company to lease and operate the road. Hon. Mr. Hill of the Provincial Opposition introduced a resolution last week that should be a model for the Opposition of which he said: "In offering this resolution, it is not necessary that I should make any lengthy remarks. The question to be decided is a simple one. The province has an asset or piece of property on hand known as the N.B. Coal & Railway property. This it can sell or lease or operate as a government work. The government has an offer from persons who wish to lease the road on terms which amount to a sale. If this is accepted they propose to pay to the province the sum of $12,000 a year for 99 years. The question to be decided is a business one. Is it in the interest of the province to accept the offer or to operate the railway as a government work? My opinion is decidedly that the offer should be accepted. I do not believe that the government can run any railway as cheaply or derive as large an income from it as a strong company would. Politics would come in and increase expenses and diminish income. We have had a good deal of figuring over this proposition. It is said that the province has spent $700,000 on this road and that the offer is only three per cent on that sum, while we now cannot borrow money at less than four per cent. I do not think that this is correct computing. The province did not go into this as a commercial speculation, but for the purpose of developing resources."

According to Mr. Hill New Brunswick has a railway built for the development of the Provincial resources and his proposal is that the road be turned over to a company at a rental of 3 per cent, while the Government pays 4 per cent on the money. The West needs a railway to Hudson Bay for the development of western resources and the proposal of the Alberta Opposition is that the line be built at the public expense. Would they also propose that the line be turned over to a company at a lower rate of interest than the public would pay for the use of the money?

Of equal interest and also in connection with the railway question comes the following denatch explaining the cause of the retirement of Attorney-General Wilson from the McBrat Cabinet in British Columbia:

Victoria, B.C., Mar. 15.—The session of the legislature being over, the resignation of the Attorney-General, Mr. Charles Wilson, has come to light. When Mr. Wilson left for Ottawa on private business in the midst of the heaviest part of the session there was a prophetic hint about the Legislature that he would never again be seen in the Attorney-General's seat in the House. Mr. Wilson and his colleagues did not even eye-to-eye on the Columbia & Western bill, which was then prepared and ready for presentation to the House. It was even said that he was with difficulty restrained from making his position clear on the floor of the House on this question. Had he been a private member instead of a member of the Government he would assuredly have taken this course. This bill gave to the C.P.R. a subsidy of $90,000 a year, to which in his opinion, it was not entitled. For his party's sake, however, the Attorney-General refrained from an open split, and contented to withdraw from the scene, taking advantage of the opportunity to go east on private business.

himself as a hind until the session closed. His resignation, however, is understood, was then handed in to the understanding that the Premier for the advantage of the party, might keep it back until the House rose. The time has now come, and the resignation is now in and accepted. When Hon. Mr. Wilson left for the east his place was filled by Hon. F. J. Fulton, the Provincial Secretary, the latter will likely continue to fill the position, thus avoiding the necessity for opening any constituency at the present time. With the Kallen Island investigation fresh in the minds of the people and the Columbia & Western deal just consummated, it is deemed absolutely certain that if any seat in the Province were open, the result would be an usual defeat for the Government. Mr. Wilson will continue to represent Vancouver in the legislature. The suppression of the news creates rather an odd situation. It is doubtful that his Honor gave his consent to the Columbia & Western bill without the knowledge that the bill did not meet with the approval of his chief legal adviser, and so strong was that gentleman's views on the subject that he had withdrawn from the Government. There is no doubt, therefore, that he was not fully informed when he assented to the bill, and he may ask the Government for an explanation of the same.

British Columbia administers the public domain located within that Province as a source of Provincial revenue and the present Government administers it so palpably in the interest of the C.P.R. that a member of the Government retires from his portfolio; the Alberta Opposition protests against the administration of the public domain of Alberta by a Federal Government which has abandoned the policy of conferring land grants on railway corporations. Is there anything in the circumstances which exempts the Alberta Opposition from the suspicion of desiring control of the public domain of the province that they might follow in the footsteps of Premier McElwaine in bestowing that domain on the corporation upon which their party in Alberta no less than in British Columbia relies and relies for support.

al schools. Over these the state did not have control of the children. Here in Alberta and Saskatchewan the Government had the right to force compulsory education and compel all children to attend the national schools. He had hoped that this question would never have arisen again, but he thought that this was only the rumblings after the storm.

The gentleman from High River had a very high opinion of the government as carried on in the United States, but he confined that admiration to the school system. He did not say anything about the administration of the land. The Federal Government in all the Western States withholds the lands, and there was not a case on record where the Federal Government gave an annuity to any State in lieu of the land.

As a further evidence of better treatment by the Federal Government, he pointed out that in Canada the Hudson's Bay monopoly had been bought off by the Dominion Government and the railways were built, the administration of law and order were also undertaken by the central government.

The control of the lands by the Dominion was merely temporary, at any rate. As soon as the lands passed into the hands of homesteaders and title was granted, they came under provincial control.

Mr. McCauley of Victoria said he was not disposed to take much of the time of the House in saying what he had to say. There were many things that he had had in mind, but the member for Red Deer had already covered most of them so completely that he was more than satisfied with the way that they had been said. However, there were one or two points that he would like to make while he was on his feet. He was pleased to see that the speech contained so much pertaining to the agricultural industry. He believed that 90 per cent of the people of the Province were agricultural people and that any legislation touching the industry affected directly the whole people. He was glad that the Government had taken over the creameries and that it proposed to continue the operation of them, but in this respect he was willing to go even a little farther than the Government had promised to go. He believed that the fat stock commissioner should be appointed, who would undertake the shipping and handling of fat stock from the farmer to the market. He believed that the dairy commissioner undertook the handling of butter from the dairy to the market and he believed that he was prepared to show where and how it could be done and not cost the Government of the Province a cent. Talking about monopolies and combines, he said that the worst monopoly of all was the beef monopoly that got between the farmer and his market and became fabulously rich out of the money that properly belonged to the farmer. The Gordon & Ironsides monopoly and the P. Burns monopoly controlled the trade, and no cattle could bring the highest price in the market without the Burns or the Ironsides brand on them. He proposed at a later date to bring down a bill willing to deal with the beef monopoly by the appointment of a fat stock commissioner who would take care of the marketing of the farmer's fat stock. That before long the P. Burns, and the Gordon & Ironsides people would be glad to come to the fat stock commissioner to get their cattle handled in the same way.

A PARTING TRIBUTE

To the Editor of the Bulletin.
Dear Sir:—Kindly allow me to say a few words in affectionate memory of Dan. Gould, whose sudden death was chronicled in your paper yesterday.
Danville Gould was in many ways a unique and extraordinary character
among the hardy pioneers of the last west. He had been through the Alder Gulch gold excitement in Montana, the Cripple Creek boom in Colorado, and numerous other exciting scenes, and you in spite of all, had retained a nobleness of soul and a natural refinement of spirit, by no means common among men of his class. I would like to relate a little story casting a vivid gleam of light upon the many-sided character of this strange hunter of the northern wilder.

It was on the Salt River, a thousand miles north of Edmonton, six lodges of Chipewyan and Dan and the writer
were together on a hunting expedition.
The sun was going down, golden red,
casting over the sky a wide expanse of pink and mauve. Nothing but snow and forest as far as the eye could see.
Nobility and race and power brood
over the white world. All seemed well, and yet a strange silence lay upon the lodges. Not a childish word was heard, nor equaw, nor brave uttered a sound,
and a strange of all, never a husky dog raised its wonted howl at the close of day. What ailed us then? Why this silence? The camp was starving! No food for two long days and nights, not a spring bird, or muskrat—Absolutely nothing! No muskrat, wood buffalo, caribou or beaver! Not a fish running in the stream! Inside our skin lodge, Dan and I were making tea. I re-cut the fish and caught on a branch bark mat in the forest and went to find Dan's small sack of dried fish. It was empty! To my absolute knowledge there were five fish there in the morning. "Where are the fish, Dan?" I asked in amazement. "Never mind," he replied, "lighten up your belt, boy, this is nothing. I was once five days without food on the Wind River in the States." I questioned him no further, as I could see he was in no mood for argument. Silently we drank our tea as we listened to the wail of some poor starving Indian child in the teepees around us. Without a word, without a sound we rolled ourselves up in our blankets for a night of troubled sleep.
Day broke, and in spite of a long ramble with the gun, nothing turned up and we still starved. The Indians were gathering goose-grass to satisfy the cravings of their stomachs and black death stared us in the face amid the awful frozen latitude of the Great Lone Land. My mind still reverted to those dried fish and in desperation I volunteered to make my way unaided to the Fort in search of help. Old Dan's eyes twinkled, and he said "take the gun
one more, boy, and see if a spring bird has come yet." I started out, and by great good luck, found a robin newly arrived from the south, which I managed to shoot and on which we lived for the third day. The Indians were now in a sad plight and it was pitiful to hear the cries and laments of the famished women and children. The dogs were lying down, the men sit stoidly by.

On the fourth day the suckers commenced to run in the river, the nets broke with the weight of fish, and everybody rejoiced. But what about those dried fish?

Long months afterwards, on a winding forest trail, I met a little old wizened Indian, carrying some magnificent beaver and other skins. I asked him in Cree where he was going. He replied "To give these to my little cousin, Dan Gould." "Why?" I asked.
He replied "the white brother fed my little ones with his last dried fish,
when we were starving on the River
of Salt."

Truly a brave and generous deed!
There was a good deal of the gallant in Dan. Gould, and in his breast he had always a helping hand to give to others. All the northern Indians loved him and tell of his kindness and sympathy for them.

His old hunting comrade,
JOHN COLLINGWOOD DICKSON.

CANADA'S FISHERY WEALTH

The position of British Columbia from a fishery point of view is in many important respects, unique, says Prof. Edward E. Prince, Dominion Commissioner of Fisheries, in a recent article in the Pacific Fisherman.

Extending from the 49th parallel to Alaska its coastal waters form vast areas like Hecate Straits, Dixon Entrance, Queen Charlotte Sound, and the Straits of Georgia, sheltered from the ocean favorable for the pursuit of fishing operations, and abounding in the most valuable economic species of fish. Vancouver Island and the group of Queen Charlotte Islands, form a barrier against the storms of the outside waters and provide the most extensive spawning and feeding ground in the world for the halibut, herring, and numerous other food-fishes. The coast is also deeply indented, and remarkable inlets occur at every point where sea-fishing operations can be carried on. But more remarkable still is the fact that all the principal Salmon rivers of the Pacific Coast take their rise on the Western watershed of British Columbia and the Fraser, the Skeena and the Naas, in their whole course, flow through the Province while others like the Columbia river debouch beyond its boundaries. If, as all fisheries authorities are agreed, food fishes improve in quality in cold northern waters, it must be admitted that the province possesses an advantage in its geographical condition.

The salmon industry of British Columbia claims the first place in any review of the provincial fisheries, but the details are so well known that it is necessary to refer to certain salient features only.

Since Salmon canning operations began in a small way on the Fraser river in the "sixties", until the present time, when about seventy canneries are operated on the coast, its growth has been gradual and healthy. The main operations have been confined to four centres, the Fraser, the Skeena, Rivers inlet and Naas river, each excepting the last, each separated by a distance from each other of from two hundred and fifty to three hundred miles.

A widely prevalent belief exists that every fourth year is a "big year" on the Fraser and no doubt some foundation exists for the belief, though the periodicity is not perfectly confirmed. Large runs during the last thirty years have indeed occurred three times in "fourth" years, twice in "fifth" years, once in a "sixth" year, and three times in a "third" year. There is however even less semblance of periodicity in the northern rivers of the province.

With the increasing demand for fish salmon, other than sockeyes, have been increasingly canned in British Columbia and the last official statistics show that of the pack on the Fraser of 129,000 cases, over 51,000 cases were of these previously neglected kinds of salmon (1904).

Other changes are observable in the industry. The Indians and white fishermen have been already displaced by Japanese. It is stated that 85 per cent of the Fraser River fishermen are Japanese and in some canneries 90 out of every 100 employees are from Japan. Chinese labor prevailed in the packing establishments owing to its cheapness, but the price of Oriental labor has immensely increased: $30 to $40 per month, in addition to board, being now paid by some canneries.

Perhaps the most remarkable development is that of the dog salmon industry. These fish until recently were regarded with contempt, but so great is the demand from the Japanese market that more than 3,000 tons, dried and salted, were shipped this year from the province. Just as the Turkey is the universal dish at Christmas tide with us, so a salted dog salmon is the chief item at New Year feasts in Japan. The usual price is said to be 50 cents each in the Japanese markets.

LIEUT. HEROIZED.

St. Petersburg, Mar. 20.—Lieut. Schmidt leader of the naval revolt at Sebastopol in November last who was tried by court martial and shot near Otchakoff fortress south Russia yesterday with three sailors sentenced to death for mutiny is being made a hero and a martyr by the revolutionists. The boys of St. Petersburg gymnasium struck to-day in order to compel the offering up of prayers in the school for the repose of the soul of the Lieut. St. Petersburg Mar. 20.—Most sensational reports are current to-night that the execution of former Lieut. Schmidt which made an impression throughout Russia has been followed by an extensive mutiny of sailors at Sebastopol and the massacre of their officers.
